

Eva Glanze

Jane M. Klausman Women in Business Scholarship 2014 Recipient

Country of Citizenship: Germany
Nominated by District 14

In 2012, Eva Glanze completed two years of studies both at ESB Reutlingen, Germany, and Universidad de las Américas Puebla, Mexico, achieving a degree in international management. Having studied at one of the most renowned business schools in Germany and a leading university in Latin America, she gained excellent knowledge of her field and developed outstanding cultural competency.

After graduating, Eva gained practical experience while she worked as a strategy consultant for Accenture, a large multinational technology consulting firm. In 2013, she left the firm to gain further in-depth knowledge in the field of leadership development.

Currently, Eva is pursuing a Master of Business Administration at the research-oriented Ludwig-Maximilians-University in Munich, Germany. During her exchange semester at Hawaii Pacific University in Honolulu, USA, Eva developed an international perspective on current research in the field of intercultural teamwork, leadership development, and organizational change.

Upon completion of her postgraduate studies, Eva wishes to pursue a career in international business, preferably in the field of leadership development. Her goal is to continue research on implementing human resources management practices to create equal opportunities for all who strive to become leaders, regardless of gender or cultural background. Eva is fluent in German, English, Spanish and French.
